

November 2015

Dear Spanish Society of Immunology (SEI),

On behalf of IPOPI we are writing to express our deep appreciation for SEI's invaluable support to the Second International Primary Immunodeficiencies Congress (IPIC2015) which took place in Budapest on 5-6 November 2015.

The feedback received so far has been extremely positive. We are delighted to have witnessed a significant increase (over 70%) in participation since the first congress, with close to 700 participants and over 70 countries represented this year in Budapest.

In 2017 we will build on these outcomes and travel to Dubai with the aim to continue promoting clinical advances in the field and helping improve access to diagnosis and appropriate treatment for people living with a primary immunodeficiency worldwide through the congress.

IPIC2017 will provide an excellent opportunity to strengthen the dialogue between the key PID stakeholders including patients, physicians, nurses and industry partners in a new region.

IPOPI is most grateful for your support throughout the whole process which contributed to the success of this event and we hope to be able to count on your support for the next congress in 2017.

More information will be available in due course on www.ipic2017.com

With renewed thanks and good wishes.

Yours sincerely
